Region

Over the last thirty seven years, the hospital has been loyal to its philosophy, which is promoting health through prevention; the treatment of disease and alleviation of suffering. In 1976, the hospital opened its doors in Meyrin, a village in the Geneva region, at a place called «La Tour». It originally included a maternity ward, a pediatrics service, medical-surgical beds and an emergency service.

An American company bought the property in 1980 which allowed it to continue to operate in the spirit intended by the founders and to pursue its development. Medical structures improved, new units opened regularly, significant investments took place in equipment and latest generation of medical apparatus.

2013 La Tour Réseau de Soins was sold to a private Swiss Investor Gestron. The new owner will build a second 20’000m² hospital building which will allow us to extend Sports Medicine and Orthopedic units. All these elements contribute to making the Hôpital de La Tour a leading establishment in the field of patient care.
